the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased in the UK, and this is likely to continue in the future (Mental Health Foundation, 2004).

There is a need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems, and this is a key aim of the UK government's Mental Health Strategy (Department of Health, 2003). The strategy sets out a vision of a society in which people with mental health problems are able to live their lives to the full, and to be fully included in all aspects of society. The strategy also sets out a number of key objectives, including the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems, and to reduce the stigma and discrimination that they experience.

One of the key objectives of the strategy is to improve the lives of people with mental health problems, and this is a key aim of the Mental Health Act 1983 (MHA 1983). The MHA 1983 sets out a number of key objectives, including the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems, and to reduce the stigma and discrimination that they experience.
